

PRIVACY POLICY FOR AUSTRALIAN MEDIA GROUP

Australian Media Group appreciates and values our subscribers to Security Solutions Magazine, Education Technology Solutions Magazine and Educational Activities Magazine. In order to serve you better, we have developed this privacy policy to inform you of our practices related to the personal information that you may provide us in connection with our publications. This policy covers both our online and offline practices related to magazine subscription information for Security Solutions Magazine, Education Technology Solutions Magazine and Educational Activities Magazine.

The Personal Information We Collect:

As part of the subscription process, Australian Media Group collects the following personal information: name, job title, company name, address, phone and fax numbers and e-mail address. Our subscribers determine the appropriate contact information (home or business). We may also associate other information with your personal information, such as product interests and industry sectors. The information may be provided through online forms, printed subscription forms and by telephone.

How We Use This Information:

Australian Media Group uses the information we collect primarily to deliver the magazines and service your subscription (including the renewal process).

Australian Media Group uses third parties to help provide the fulfilment and mailing services for partner communications. These third parties also act as list brokers so that partners can direct their communications to those subscribers who are most likely to be interested in their product or service offerings. Bonded mailing houses are used to send out partner mails, so that subscriber contact information is not directly provided to the partner. Partners may also pay fees to Australian Media Group for access to subscriber lists as outlined above in order to help defray the costs of Australian Media Group's publications.

Australian Media Group may also provide marketing related to Australian Media Group's products, services and events to subscribers. Subscribers may opt out of such marketing by sending an e-mail to listremoval@australianmediagroup.com with the following subject line: REMOVE FROM LIST.
